BEFORE PHOENIX, THERE WERE CANALS

THE ANCIENT WATER SYSTEM
BENEATH
THE VALLEY

Hundreds of years before Phoenix existed, the Hohokam people built an extensive network of canals across the Salt River Valley between about 450 and 1450 AD.

Using simple tools and remarkable engineering, they diverted Salt and Gila River water to irrigate desert land, growing crops like corn, beans and squash, and supporting thriving communities.

The legacy lives on today — the modern Grand Canal is believed to follow the pathway of an ancestral Hohokam canal, a lasting connection to the region's remarkable past.

ANCIENT INGENUITY. A STRONGER TOMORROW.

LONDON BRIDGE IS IN ARIZONA?

Yes! The historic London Bridge was purchased in England, dismantled, shipped to Arizona and rebuilt in Lake Havasu City, opening in 1971.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

LITCHFIELD PARK

NAMED FOR PAUL W. LITCHFIELD

The Goodyear executive came to the Valley in 1916 to establish cotton-growing operations. The company town was officially named Litchfield Park in 1926.
